

Have questions about your pet? The Internet can help! (Well, certain parts of the internet can.) We have searched the Web and found these helpful and informative sites to help you take care of your pet in the best way possible. Enjoy!

- www.veterinarypartner.com

This website is monitored closely by veterinarians for content and gives a lot of helpful information about various illnesses that pets get, tips on routine care of your pet (diet, feeding, housing, toys, etc), and some great advice for behavior problems and training tips from veterinary behaviorists.

- www.askdryin.com

This site is one of our favorites! It is hosted by Dr. Yin, a veterinarian who specializes in behavior and training. She has posted a number of helpful handouts on a variety of topics as well as many training videos to help reinforce the things she talks about and things you may have read about (crate training, biting, aggression, barking, etc).

- www.hillspet.com

This site gives good information about Hill's Science Diet products as well as good information about pet nutrition.

- www.petfit.com

A great resource for helping your pet lose weight.

- www.petwellness.com

A site sponsored by Novartis. Includes a lot of helpful information about routine pet care.

- www.jamesandkenneth.com

A great site that offers Dr. Ian Dunbar's book "Before You Get Your Puppy" as a free download for new puppy owners. This book will cover the basics of housetraining, chewtoy training, and get you socializing your new little one. A must-have resource for puppy owners!

- www.petdental.com

Good information about home dental care, the risks of dental disease, and how you can help your pet live a long, life, free of tooth pain. Sponsored by Hills.

- www.growingupwithpets.com

Great information for pet owners with children. Learn how to teach your kids to interact with pets and how to be responsible for some aspects of pet healthcare. Also gives good information on keeping your family safe from certain pet-borne diseases such as intestinal parasites.

- www.dogstardaily.com

A website that is updated daily with information about dog and cat training. Includes several videos as well as information from books written by Dr. Ian Dunbar. All the information on the website is available at no charge.

- www.premier.com

Have questions about getting your dog to walk nicely on a leash? To not bark when people come to the door? To not jump up on people when he sees them? This is the website for you! Lots of information about the Gentle Leader Headcollar, Citronella bark collars, and great chewtoys to keep your dog entertained.
